

Glen Torridon Partnership: A Landscape-scale Nature Restoration Project

Malcolm Turner
Ben Shildaig & Couldoran
26th April 2023

WOODLAND
TRUST SCOTLAND

Scotland's rainforest...

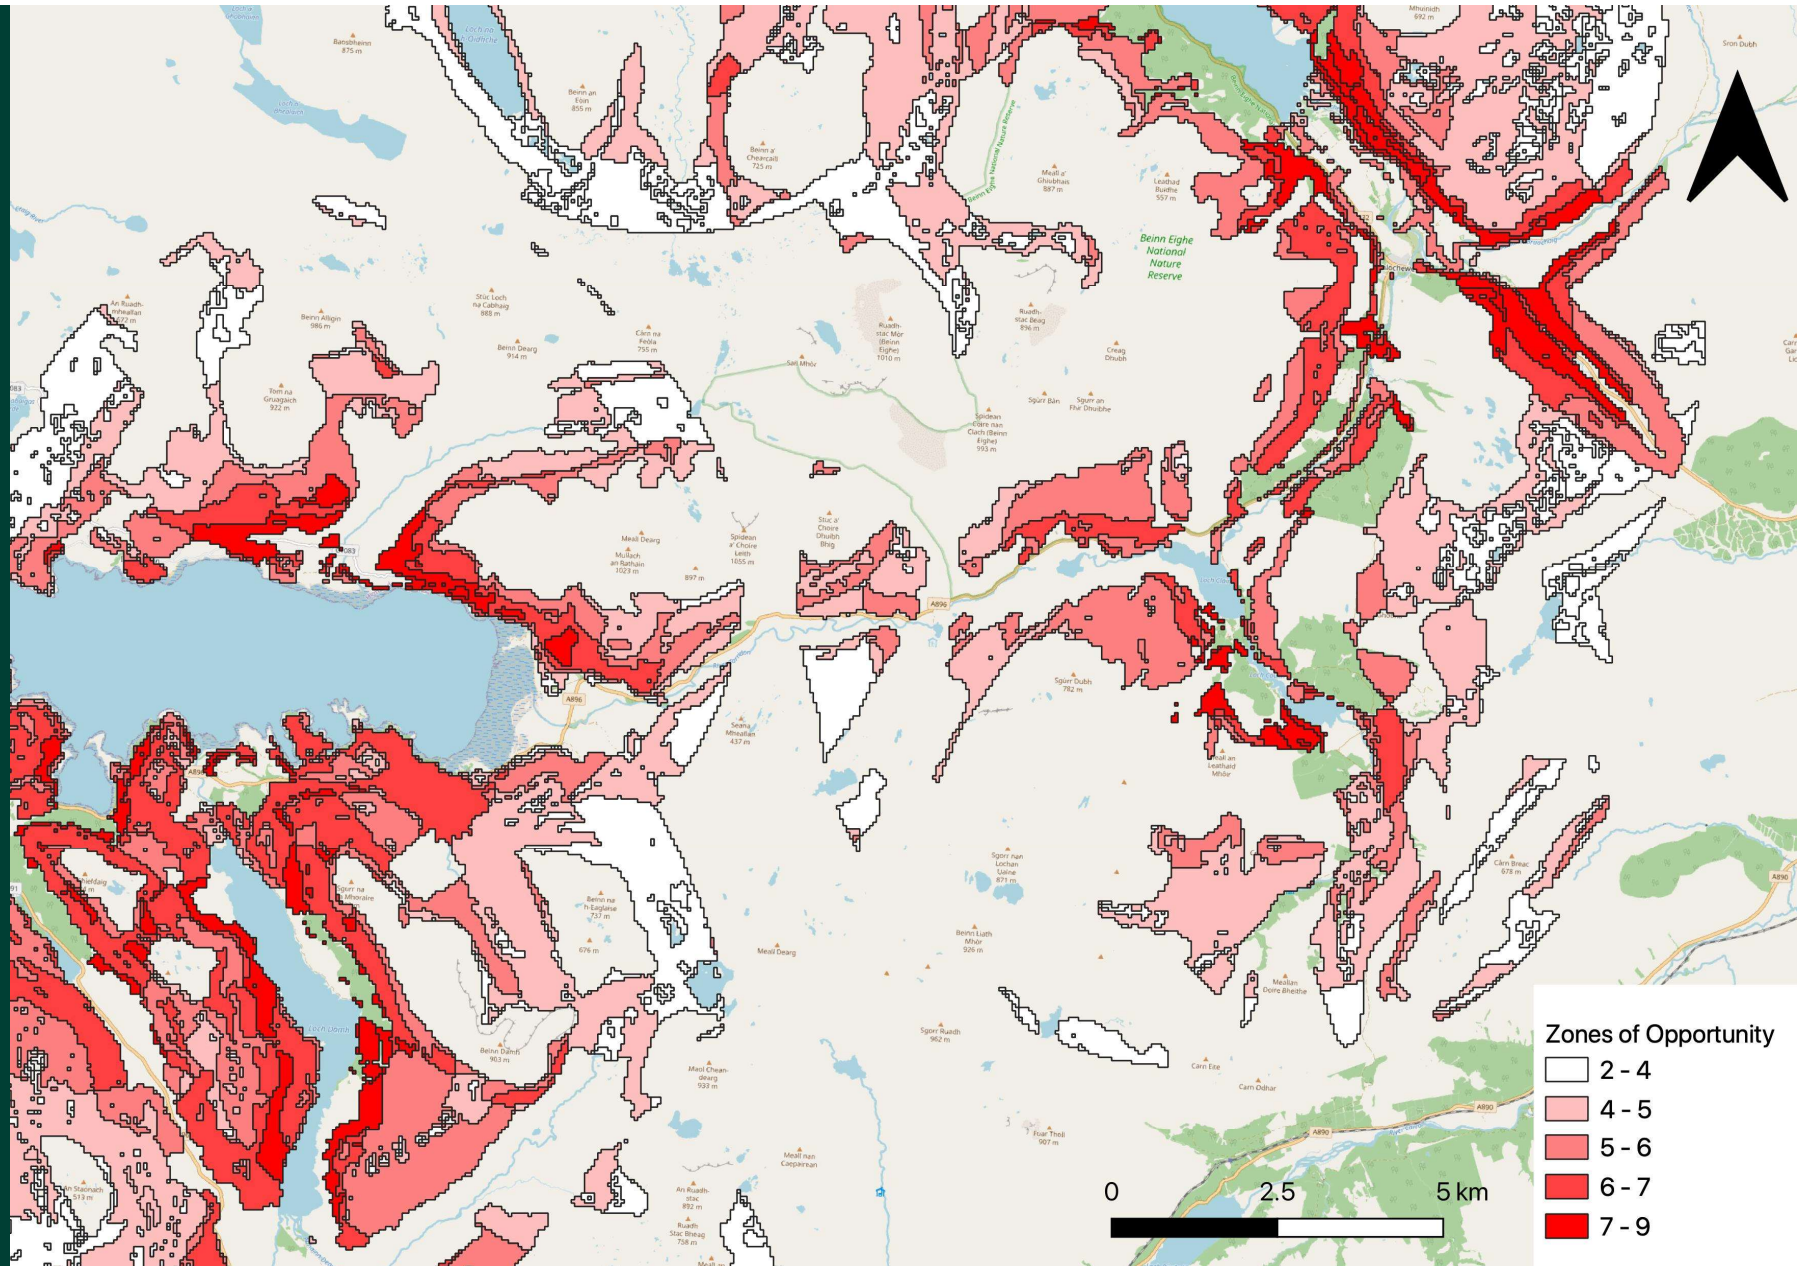

...becoming connected

The Glen Torridon Partnership is a pioneering landscape-scale approach to long-term habitat restoration in Glen Torridon, one of the most iconic mountain landscapes in the UK. Using nature-based solutions whilst working across landownership boundaries and with local communities, the Glen will blossom into a thriving network of habitats, which are resilient against climate change and where biodiversity can flourish.

Data-gathering and mapping

Native woodland creation

Tackling Invasive Non-Native Species

Monitoring

Wildfire prevention and awareness

BBC

Sign in

Home

News

Sport

Weather

iPlayer

Sounds

NEWS

Home | Coronavirus | US Election | UK | World | Business | Politics | Tech | Science | Health | Family & Education

Scotland | Scotland Politics | Scotland Business | Edinburgh, Fife & East | Glasgow & West | Highlands & Islands | NE, O

Alba | Local News

Wildfire numbers in Scotland quadruple in a year

🕒 28 June 2019

CARRBRIDGE FIRE STATION

Fire chiefs have warned of another summer of blazes like the one near Paul's Hill wind farm in Moray

Engagement & Consultation

Next steps